Amerisure Announces New Vice President of Application Systems

FARMINGTON HILLS, Mich., June 12, 2018— Amerisure Insurance is pleased to announce that Amjed Al-Zoubi has joined the company as vice president of application systems. In this position, Al-Zoubi will lead the development and maintenance of all application systems within information technology (IT).

Al-Zoubi will serve as a liaison with both internal and external customers, in an effort to maximize the organization's technology platforms. He also will partner with Jim Suchara, vice president of digital innovation, in leveraging new technologies and ensuring the effective implementation of application of business services.

"We warmly welcome Amjed to Amerisure," said Shawn O'Rourke, chief information officer at Amerisure. "Amjed's robust insurance and application development leadership will greatly benefit our organization."

Al-Zoubi most recently worked in the IT department at USAA Life Insurance Company where he was involved in leading the company's system and process modernization journey, helping to re-engineer business processes, and replacing infrastructure and policy administration systems.

Prior to joining USAA, Al-Zoubi was employed with CUNA Mutual Group, where he led the IT application development and production support teams for corporate support functions. Al-Zoubi's experience at CUNA Mutual Group also included roles leading merger and acquisition integration teams; leading business operations teams; and developing business strategies and program management.
